"...Everyone on our panel was struck by this wine's beauty, as its delicate touch seemed to connect with every scent and taste receptor at once. The pink color and the range of green herbs in the scent seem to resonate through the wine, taking its radish-like tension and formal structure in an understated direction."

"I admit to a weakness for grower champagnes. They taste to me more like fine wines that happen to have bubbles...The wine sports Pinot Noir's strawberry and rhubarb notes, with overtones of wet earth, herbs and toast... It's the delicate fruit that's so beguiling. What's that on the finish? Peach?" – Harvey Steiman

"... [A]nother utterly delicious Champagne from Vesselle. Dried rose petals, orange zest, white pepper and mint give much of its high-toned aromatics, but there is plenty of depth to the fruit as well...possesses striking finesse and exceptional overall balance...an old-fashioned style of Blanc de Noirs with just a touch of color from a very short period of skin contact at pressing."
