

BINDI SERGARDI TOSCANA BIANCO 'BINDO'

Malvasia Blanc, Trebbiano and Chardonnay. Dedicated to Bindo Bindi, governor of Orvieto in 1400, an area still known for the production of great whites. Paper white color with golden highlights. An intense bouquet, with hints of peach, pear, citrus, flowers and aromatic herbs. Fresh and tasty, mineral with good acidity. Wine to drink young to better enjoy its freshness.

I Colli estate is located in Tuscany, Italy, in the northernmost part of the province of Siena, in the townships of Monteriggioni and Castelnuovo Berardenga. The vines are 20-25 years old, planted on a slope facing East at 400m altitude, in alberese, calcareous soil. After destemming and soft pressing, the must was transferred into stainless steel vats where fermentation using native yeast occurred at a controlled temperature. The wine is then stored in steel for a few months before being bottled.

The Bindi Sergardi family heritage is one closely tied with the history of the Chianti and Chianti Classico region. For twenty-three generations—since 1349—the Bindi Sergardi family has been an integral force in the wine of Siena, deeply involved in the politics, economics and culture of the region. The current manager, Alessandra Casini Bindi Sergardi, joined the company in 2005 following the 700 years-old tradition of her family in wine making. Inspired by her father, Nicolo, and the courageous example of her grandmother, Chiara, and great grandmother, Elisabetta, she gave new light to the family business. They make wine from their three estates: Tenuta Mocenni, Tenuta I Colli, and Tenuta Marcianella, which combined have 250 acres planted to vine. They are true Sangiovese specialists through their work in the vineyards and cellar. They make wines that have a strong cultural identity and express their bonds with the land. Family stories, ancient traditions, and ancestral values handed down through the years; each wine pays tribute to the places and persons that have made the family what it is today.
