

JUANVI VITICULTOR RUBIELOS DE MORA

Garnacha and Tempranillo. A youthful, fruit-driven red wine with good ripeness but also exceptional freshness and acidity, and is both juicy and light at the same time. It's a fresh, tasty, and easy-to-drink new-school Mediterranean wine. Practicing Organic.

From vines grown in the organically-farmed La Ermita de Los Mátiros and La Loma vineyards near the village of Rubielos de Mora at 980m in the Teruel province, Aragón, Spain. Consisting of 9.88 acres of garnacha and tempranillo, with the youngest vines were planted in 2008 and the oldest are more than 90 years old. Soils are granitic, rocky, and shallow for garnacha (similar to Gredos) and calcareous clay soils for tempranillo. Whole bunches are hand-harvested, then whole grapes are destemmed but not crushed, and undergo spontaneous fermentation with native yeasts with a short maceration and light pumping over (without breaking the skins) in stainless steel tanks. Following pressing, the wine rests in concrete tanks for five months.

Juanvi Viticultor is an artisan winery established in 2008 in Rubielos de Mora, a village in the Sierra de Gúdar-Javalambre mountains of Aragón, Spain. The winery was founded by Vicente Alcañiz and Jesús Romero, who planted the initial vineyards. In 2011, Vicente's son, Juan Vicente "Juanvi" Alcañiz, took over the project, bringing experience from winemaking in regions such as Ribera del Duero, Argentina, Chile, and New Zealand. Juanvi focuses on producing high-quality mountain wines from organically farmed vineyards, aiming to revitalize the local wine industry and create employment opportunities in this sparsely populated area.
