

O.R.A. COLLECTIVE SKIN CONTACT ORANGE 'BIDDIZZA'

Catarratto and Zibibbo. Biddizza (Bid-deets-sa) means 'beauty' in the Sicilian dialect. Amber color. Aromas of lemon, peach, apricot jam and crushed stones. There's a sharp, electric brightness cutting through the sweetness. Textured, with a skincontact grip that's firm but not pushy. The finish is long, dry and tinged with herbs and sea, tethered to its Mediterranean roots. Pair with Sicilian seafood, fresh salads and grilled vegetables, anything that benefits from a citrusy punch and texture-driven complexity. Organic.

From the Trapani Region of central Sicily, Italy, from vines planted in chalky, limestone soil. Organic and dry-farmed grapes are hand harvested and fermented separately using indigenous yeast. Juice spends about 15 days on skins, and 8 months aging in stainless-steel tanks. Bottled unfiltered and unfiltered.

Change starts from the ground up. And for ORA Collective, that means rethinking the way we farm, the way we make wine, the way we care for the land, all across Italy. Meet ORA Collective, a grassroots network of farms and winemakers that through regenerative organic farming crafts natural wine that speaks of the land it comes from pure, real, and rooted in nature. But it's more than wine, it's a commitment to healthier soils, thriving ecosystems, and a planet that can breathe. O.R.A. Collective wines are real, honest, and made to be shared. Crafted through regenerative organic farming, they're full of life, fresh, easy to drink, and free from unnecessary additives. With low sulphites and low sugar, they let the land do the talking. And because we work as a collective, we keep our wines affordable, proving that good, natural wine doesn't have to be exclusive. More than just wine, it's a way to give back to the earth, grow together, and work to make a positive impact one bottle at a time.
